9 REASONS

Why Thailand is a preferred destination for medical tourism

Thailand is considered the leading country in the world for health and medical tourism, and for many a good reason.

The Land of Smiles offers a winning combination of world-class care with board-certified professionals, modern medical facilities, and state-of-the-art technology.

In 2019, more than 4 million people traveled to Thailand for the sole purpose of receiving affordable healthcare, and that number is growing annually.

Below, we look at some of the key reasons about why so many people from around the world are putting their trust in Thailand's healthcare system.

1. The Most JCI-Accredited Hospitals in Southeast Asia

The Joint Commission International is a globally recognized standard of quality – and Thailand boasts the most hospitals in the region with such accreditation (60 in total), and ranks fourth in the world.

This renowned quality assessment body takes into consideration all aspects of every hospital or medical facility to determine whether it meets a set of standards and requirements put in place to improve the overall quality of patient care.

2. Highly Trained Medical Professionals

Thailand's medical professionals are skilled and experienced in providing the highest quality treatment possible. Many of the top doctors, surgeons and nurses have undertaken at least part of their training at prestigious medical schools abroad, providing them with the necessary expertise and understanding to successfully treat patients flying in from overseas.

It is also common for specialists to have carried out research and added training at some of Thailand's leading medical institutions, publishing their findings on an on-going basis while fulfilling their commitments as active members of professional organizations.

3. No Waiting Lists

Unlike in countries like the UK and US, one of the big advantages of receiving medical care in Thailand is that patients aren't faced with long waiting lists. Most can simply book their appointment, arrange their travel dates, and then head to their chosen clinic or hospital almost immediately upon arrival.

Medical centers in Thailand have an abundance of operating theaters with plenty of qualified surgeons and doctors on standby to carry out treatment – delivering the desired results with predictable treatment outcomes.

Even the most complex and invasive procedures entail only a short wait from the day of booking to the actual appointment.

4. Thailand Offers World-Class Services and Warm Hospitality

Thais in general have earned a well-deserved reputation for their compassion and warm hospitality, hence the commonly-used nickname, "The Land of Smiles".

In fact, many patients undergoing treatment here report that they feel more like they are being pampered at a boutique hotel rather than having to endure an uncomfortable hospital-stay. The friendly service and various 21-century in-room amenities make them feel right at home. After all, it's not called a "medical holiday" for nothing!

5. Amazing Cost Savings of Up to 70%

The main driving force behind any medical travel is always going to be the cost – and Thailand certainly doesn't disappoint in this regard.

With average savings of anywhere between 50% and 70%, it's possible for patients to undergo their desired treatment, enjoy a holiday of a lifetime and still return home having saved thousands (even after factoring in travel and accommodation expenses).

6. One Stop Center for Preventive Health Check-ups

The most important factor for living a long and healthy life is taking preventive action before more serious issues arise. This can be achieved by undergoing regular check-ups and attending holistic diagnostic appointments on an on-going basis.

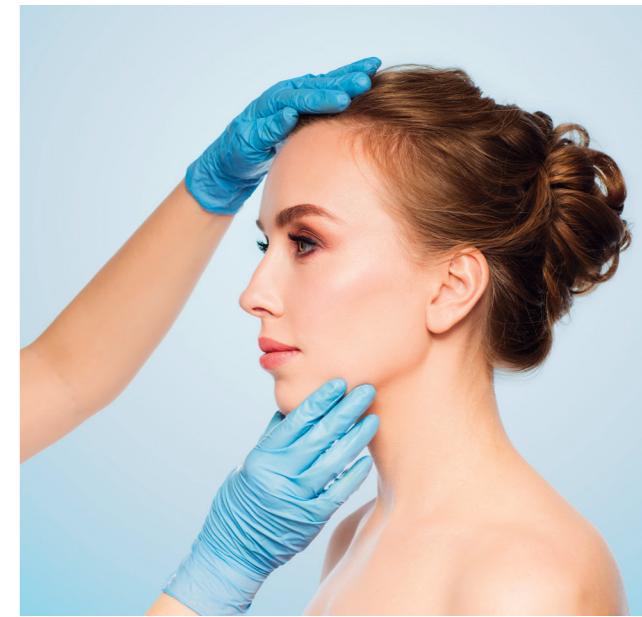

The quicker signs of a potentially progressive, degenerative disease are caught, the easier it is to treat. And with a trip to Thailand, such check-ups can be incorporated into a holiday – giving you peace of mind while you explore this fascinating country.

Preventive health check-ups are available at all hospitals, anti-aging clinics and other reputable medical centers throughout the Kingdom.

7. World-Renowned Plastic Surgery Hospitals and Clinics

More people are undergoing plastic surgery procedures than ever before. With an aging worldwide population, an increasing number of both men and women are looking for ways to enhance their physical appearance and, in turn, boost their self-confidence. This demand is also being catalyzed by the fact that procedures are now more effective than before, with faster recovery time and less invasive techniques available.

From getting rid of unwanted pockets of fat with liposuction to breast augmentations, tummy tucks, buttock lifts and facial surgery, Thailand is a world leader in a comprehensive range of cosmetic surgery procedures.

Whether you want to book your procedure at an out-patient clinic or require a longer stay at a dedicated aesthetics surgery hospital, Thailand promises inexpensive prices without the need to ever compromise when it comes to the quality or safety.

8. Thailand: The Wellness Capital of Asia

Thailand is premier one stop destination for wellness tourism in Asia where visitors can undergo a range of innovative wellness programs, such as anti-aging and regenerative treatments, combined with traditional wellness therapies found only in Thailand. These encompass traditional Thai medicine, mediation retreats, Thai spas and traditional Thai massage. Such wellness programs are scientifically proven to help you look and feel younger, ultimately helping you live a longer and happier life.

Wellness tourists visiting Thailand are experiencing for themselves just how convenient and affordable it is to take advantage of effective anti-aging and traditional wellness therapies all in one place – making Thailand “The Wellness Capital of Asia”.

9. A Paradise for Senior Care

Thailand attracts a healthy population of senior citizens looking to enjoy their golden years while soaking up the country's warm climate, interesting culture and altogether more laid-back way of life.

As a result, Thailand is well-prepared to cater to senior citizens with a range of affordable, reputable elderly care services. Here, you could find an abundance of senior nursing care facilities located in all of the top tourist and expats locales, including Chiang Mai, Koh Samui, Phuket, Pattaya and many more interesting locations.

THAILAND

THAILAND:

A Global Destination for Fertility Treatment

More and more families are choosing Thailand as a preferred destination for fertility treatments thanks to the country's range of high-quality clinics and JCI-accredited hospitals that specialize in vitro fertilization (IVF). Procedures are performed by experienced teams of fertility experts while following stringent quality control measures and using the most advanced equipment and techniques available across the world. The quality of care, which leads to high success rates, is not the only reason people choose to visit Thailand for this life-changing treatment. Facilities in major tourist destinations, such as Bangkok, Phuket and Chiang Mai, also offer prices that can be thousands less than back home, with little to no waiting times making the whole process much faster.

Thailand is also a fantastic place to receive medical procedures like this, with couples able to relax and take in the rich culture and scenery before, in-between and after their appointments at their chosen clinic. In fact, having a relaxed, stress-free state of mind has been shown to improve couples' chances of conceiving – which is certainly another reason to consider Thailand for IVF or other fertility treatments.

The advantages of choosing Thailand for infertility treatment for foreign couples.

Thailand provides effective infertility treatment by adopting the latest technology and with a complete range of fertility services. Compared to other countries, the more flexible laws and regulations regarding preimplantation genetic testing (PGT) and screening systems bring advantages for those seeking infertility treatment abroad. Thailand has adopted all of the latest technologies for infertility treatment from Europe, America, and Australia, further developing them alongside the country's own innovations, thus making Thailand ready to a world leader in this field. During the process, clients are required to visit the hospital every few days during their course of treatment and have the option to stay in Thailand for over 2 months to complete the process, as well as enjoy a relaxing holiday. Thailand shows its readiness for infertility treatment with various facilities, such as accommodation options, interpreters, and other helpful services.

The latest advances in IVF technology in Thailand.

One of the latest IVF technological advances is Massively Parallel Sequencing (MPS) which can be used to detect the chromosomes of embryo(s) more accurately. In the past, we were only able to distinguish between normal and abnormal embryo(s) but with MPS technology, some abnormal embryos that do not harm the fertilization process can be used to enable prenatal development. This process makes infertility treatment in Thailand more successful.

Thailand becomes a leader in infertility treatment.

Thailand was one of the first countries that started to develop infertility treatment more than 30 years ago and is now a global leader in medical treatment for infertility problems. Centers provide effective medical education programs with high human resources system standards. Specialist IVF facilities have solved infertility problems over generations, with the children born via IVF becoming the second generation today. This shows Thailand's success with respect to the reliability of IVF.

The number of couples expected to travel to Thailand to receive infertility treatment.

Approximately 10,000 foreign couples travel to Thailand to receive infertility treatment every year.

The number of IVF doctors in Thailand.

There are currently more than 300 specialist IVF doctors in Thailand with around 10-15 new doctors becoming specialists in this field every year.

THAILAND: Cosmetic Surgery

According to a recent global statistics survey from the International Society of Aesthetic Plastic Surgery (ISAPS), Thailand ranks the highest in the world in terms of the number of foreign patients who visit the country for medical care.

Plastic surgery in Thailand is highly regarded amongst international patients thanks to the professional skills of Thai plastic surgeons who use the latest equipment and techniques and follow globally-recognized safety and hygiene protocols. Time and time again, patients say they are satisfied with their treatment outcomes and quick recovery times, which is why they often return.

What's more, patients have the chance to combine an exotic holiday to Thailand as part of their trip, with a variety of plastic surgery hospitals and clinics to choose from in major tourism destinations such as Bangkok, Phuket and Pattaya.

And importantly, a trip to Thailand for surgery offers the chance to save thousands compared to prices back home - even when considering travel expenses, which are generally low.

The strengths of plastic surgery in Thailand.

Thailand is well-known for offering a variety of treatments and surgeries performed by well-trained surgeons and high-quality care. Surgeons in the country had exchanged their knowledge to Asian countries, European countries and the U.S.A, which make them renowned for their expertise. In addition, the country has developed a reputation as a low-cost cosmetic surgery and gender confirmation surgery. Comparing the price with other countries, receiving plastic surgery or any other treatment in Thailand is 30% cheaper.

Gender confirmation surgery, Liposuction and breast Augmentation surgery are what we are famous for. Numerous Thai surgeons have extensive experience performing surgeries such as plastic surgery and even gender confirmation. They provide high quality service to their clients as they're renowned surgeons who were internationally knowledgeable with their expertise.

Any suggestions why Thailand should be considered as the destination for plastic surgery? Where are most foreign clients come from?

There are 420 plastic surgeons in Thailand. Our supply in plastic surgeons is sufficient for international clients. International surgical patients are primarily from the Middle East, the United States of America, Canada, and other Asian countries. The majority originate in Australia and New Zealand. Owing to Thailand's reputation as a plastic surgery hub, some client from neighbor countries contemplates having surgery in Thailand as well, considering the short distance and low cost of travel. The primary concerns of foreign clients are quality and safety. Thailand can attest to the superior quality and standard of our plastic surgery. Our prices are reasonable. However, clients seeking plastic surgery in Thailand should exercise caution and get appropriate information prior to making a decision for their own safety.

The advantages of choosing Thailand as a country to undergo gender confirmation surgery.

Thailand is renowned for its gender confirmation methods and expanding practice of transgender surgery, banking on decades of experience, affordable health care, and a ready supply of experienced surgeons prepared to execute male-to-female or female-to-male transformations. Gender-affirming surgery, as it is popularly referred to in the transgender community, is a small but growing component of Thailand's medical tourism industry, which itself has consistently attracted tourists, providing yet another reason to travel in Thailand.

Thailand has also established an educational program specialized in gender confirmation procedures. In operation now for over 30 years, this allows professionals to pass on their knowledge to the next generation of surgeons while also publishing multiple articles in international publications demonstrating the skill of Thai surgeons in the area of gender confirmation. Numerous Thai surgeons have been invited to international conferences to share their expertise on gender confirmation procedures, establishing Thailand as a global leader in this field. Additionally, the country's surgeons have been refining their own distinct procedures and abilities to ensure the highest satisfaction of their patients.

The main reasons for patients to consider undergoing gender confirmation surgery in Thailand.

Despite the fact that gender confirmation procedures have been performed for more than 80 years, new procedures and techniques are continually being developed, including those achieving cosmetic, aesthetic, and functional results, as well as enhancing sexual sensation. Each surgeon should constantly build their own approaches and adapt them to their clients' needs.

Numerous highly renowned surgeons have developed their own procedures and become well-known at both a domestic and international level, including Assoc. Dr. Preecha Tiewtranon, MD, who is widely regarded as the pioneer of Sex Reassignment Surgery (SRS); Dr. Suporn Watanyusakul, MD, a pioneer of the Suporn Technique (non-penile-inversion-vaginoplasty) for aesthetic improvement which has become popular worldwide; Dr Sanguan Kunaporn, MD, who is also known for pioneering the delayed skin grafts vaginoplasty technique and Dr. Sukit Worathamrong who pioneered the Sukit technique which is applied for successful phalloplasty development and the process of prefabricating the urethra using skin from the forearm.

Transgender patients' preparation before receiving gender confirmation surgery in Thailand.

Thailand adheres to the standards of care set out by the World Professional Association for Transgender Health (WPATH) and medical legislation has been enacted to ensure the country's preparedness for gender confirmation surgery. Patients undergoing gender confirmation surgery (GCS) must undergo hormonal therapy for a minimum of 12 months and obtain recommendation letters from two psychiatrists. Typically, a patient must also have spent at least one year in a gender role that corresponds to their gender identity. Those under the age of 18 are not permitted to undergo GCS in Thailand, and patients under the age of 20 require parental/guardian consent. Patients are advised to consult a doctor at home well in advance.

THAILAND: Integrative Cancer Care

Integrative Cancer Care is an approach that uses complementary therapies along with conventional medicine to treat the patient's body, mind, and spirit. Integrative therapies can help with the goals of treatment, treatment of side effects, distress relief, and may help with treatment results and adherence.

Changing the biochemistry of the body allows it the opportunity to rest and recuperate, thus helping to halt or slow down the onset of cancer with a mixture of natural and targeted medical interventions.

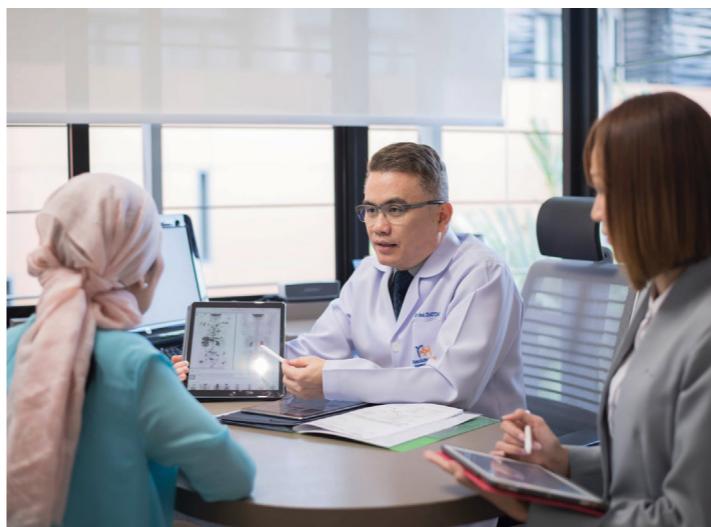

Programs offered by hospitals and specialized clinics aim to catalyze the body's own ability to heal. An integrative treatment approach can help reduce normal cell injury, alleviate symptoms and suffering while also improving the body's immunity.

Integrative Cancer Care combines targeted cancer therapy, detoxification, immune therapy, healthy nutrition & supplementation, lifestyle modification, and emotional support.

A range of integrative cancer care facilities can find in Thailand, with some of the top centers listed below:

Akesis Life

This integrative treatment center in Bangkok uses the latest therapies and is equipped with advanced technologies to provide patients with a comprehensive approach to healthcare. Wincell Research is also the only facility in Thailand granted rights to carry out innovative WT1 peptide-based cellular immunotherapy.

MEDICAL CANNABIS In Thailand

With Thailand becoming the first country in Southeast Asia to legalize medical cannabis, the door is now open for patients seeking this alternative treatment for chronic pain, as well as symptoms of depression, insomnia, diabetes, cancer, Alzheimer, Parkinson and a number of other illnesses.

Its use by doctors is still highly regulated, with patients having to obtain an official certificate for appropriate use following diagnosis.

The following is a list of approved medical conditions for which patients may be considered for treatment with medical marijuana:

- Anorexia in low-weight AIDS patients
- Alzheimer
- Chemotherapy induced nausea and vomiting
- Demyelinating diseases such as neuromyelitis Optica and Autoimmune encephalitis
- Generalized anxiety disorders
- Improving quality of life in patients receiving palliative care or patients in the final stages of life
- Intractable epilepsy
- Neuropathic pain
- Parkinson
- Spasticity for multiple sclerosis patients
- Use of medical cannabis in treating cancer (may be beneficial in the future)

The new legislation, however, is a significant step forward for those seeking the benefits of this natural medicinal plant, which is in fact native to the region and has traditionally been used for centuries in both cooking and to treating chronic ailments as previously mentioned.

Thailand is already a well-established medical and health tourist destination; for many foreigners visiting the Kingdom, the option to receive medical marijuana treatment is sure to be a big advantage.

Some of hospitals in Thailand that can currently prescribe medical cannabis for international patients include:

- BBH Hospital
- Chaophraya Abhaibhubejhr Hospital
- Panacee Hospital Rama 2
- World Medical Hospital

THAILAND: New Normal Tourism

After more than a year of inactivity, Thailand's tourism industry is set to make a comeback. Nobody is expecting the same number of visitors seen before the pandemic; it will take time to rebuild to pre-COVID levels.

Put simply, the sector needs to reinvent itself by implementing a range of 'new normal' measures designed to limit the spread of COVID-19.

Travel measures introduced globally that include quarantining on arrival and presenting proof of a negative test before flying are working. Hopefully, they will only be temporary.

If you are considering traveling to Thailand in the near future, please bear in mind the following:

- Have a mask on you at all times, wearing it in public spaces where necessary (subject to government guidelines).
- Expect temperature checks when entering shops, restaurants, hotels and malls.
- "Check-in" to public spaces, like malls and restaurants. This can usually be done via an app or by simply writing down your contact details.
- Avoid sitting in seats that have been marked off with a cross.
- Remember to carry a hand-sanitizer.
- Avoid large crowds if possible, such as Bangkok's BTS Skytrain at rush hour or large events.

You may also notice that many businesses are displaying "Safety and Health Certification" (thailandsha.tourismthailand.org) issued by the government confirming that they are in compliance with guidelines set by the Tourism Authority of Thailand.

Alternative State Quarantine (ASQ) in Thailand

Following the requirements of other major tourist destinations around the world, visitors to Thailand must agree to self-quarantine for 14 days on arrival.

This can easily be done at a government-accredited Alternative State Quarantine hotel, with prices for room and board starting at 30,000 Baht for the two-week stay.

Other options for foreigners entering the Kingdom include Alternative Hospital Quarantine or special Golf Quarantine packages that can be booked online.

ASQ packages include accommodation, 3 meals per day, two COVID-19 tests, transfers and more.

Medical Technology in Thailand

Thailand has been at the forefront of medical innovation and development since the country started welcoming medical tourists over three decades ago.

A key factor utilized to improve patient care, communication, diagnosis and treatment is telemedicine. This branch of medicine allows health-related services and information to be distributed electronically, normally online so that a patient does not have to meet a doctor in person unless it is necessary.

Specialist doctors can provide meaningful consultations to patients in other parts of the world; then, if deemed appropriate, the patient can go to that particular clinic or hospital to receive treatment.

This method cuts out unnecessary appointments and helps the doctor to create effective treatment plans in advance.

Thailand has several telemedicine applications that can be downloaded from the App Store or Google Play including:

- Chiiwii
- Doctor A to Z
- Doctor Anywhere
- Ooca It's okay
- Raksa

Regenerative medicine refers to a medical approach that aims to repair and regrow damaged or diseased cells, while also treating tissue and organ problems. This commonly involves the use of tissue engineering and stem cell therapy.

It is also considered to be a branch of anti-aging medicine in that it can be used to treat some of the underlying causes of aging and aims at alleviating age-related ailments. The overreaching goal of regenerative medicine is to extend the healthy lifespan of patients and boost their youthful characteristics.

In recent years, Thailand has become a regional leader for regenerative medicine and anti-aging science in Asia, having adopted the most innovative anti-aging technology from around the world. This means that when health tourists visit Thailand, they can find all the latest and most advanced treatments in one place, making it a hub for these kinds of medical programs.

THAILAND: A Hub for Herbal Remedies

With an all-year-round tropical climate, Thailand has the perfect conditions for growing a range of medicinal plants, many of which can be found in the wild. Herbal plants have indeed been used for medical treatments and therapies in Thailand for centuries.

Some of the most popular herbal plants that play a role in fighting chronic illnesses and ailments are:

Turmeric (khamin chan)

The main active agents found in turmeric are curcuminoids, which contains medicinal compounds such as curcumin, desmethoxycurcumin and bisdemethoxycurcumin. These compounds have been shown to potentially have anti-inflammatory, antioxidant, anti-cholesterol and anti-cancer properties.

Lemongrass (ta khrai)

A key ingredient in one of Thailand's most famous dishes, the sour and spicy tom yam soup, lemongrass stems can also be used to treat symptoms of the common cold, as well as headaches, sore throats, aching muscles and mild asthma.

Galangal (kha)

Studies on galangal have found promising results, suggesting this native type of ginger can be used to prevent inflammatory and arthritis, cardiovascular disease and cancer, as part of a balanced diet. It's also believed to aid indigestion, motion sickness and sore throats.

Ginger (khing)

Used around the world in both cooking and traditional medicine, ginger contains properties that have been linked to improving symptoms in patients with diabetes, arthritis and high blood pressure, which increases the risk of strokes and heart disease. Many people incorporate ginger supplements as part of the daily diet in order to boost metabolism, subsequently promoting weight loss.

Shallots (hom daeng)

Thailand's native variety of shallot is said to help lower cholesterol levels, with properties also linked to preventing certain types of cancer. Some may use it along with other traditional and Western medicines to lower blood pressure, treat diabetes, promote better circulation and boost metabolism.

Kaffir Lime Leaves (bai ma krut)

Some of the main health benefits of the bright kaffir lime leaf include its ability to detoxify the blood, treat skin conditions, improve digestion, decrease inflammation and promote healthy hair growth.

Coriander (phak chi)

For those who suffer from skin inflammation, high cholesterol, diarrhea, mouth ulcers, poor digestion and blood sugar disorders, coriander is another native herb to Thailand that could help. The leaves can be consumed fresh as part of a healthy meal, while the vitamin-packed seeds are normally dried or ground up.

Holy Basil (ka phrao)

Thailand's native variety of holy basil is today a much sought-after health supplement around the world thanks to its range of potential medicinal properties. Studies have suggested that it can be used to protect against infections, lower blood sugar levels and cholesterol, ease aches and pains, and fight certain types of cancer.

Garlic (kra thiam)

Garlic has a number of well-documented medicinal properties, with the most researched area being its ability to lower blood pressure, promote heart health and boost the immune system. It also has anti-bacterial and anti-fungal properties.

Sweet Basil (horapha)

The leaves of sweet basil, which have a distinctly different flavor to the common Thai basil, have been traditionally used to alleviate headaches, fight the symptoms of the common cold, relieve period pains and help with digestive issues.

Peppermint (saranae)

Peppermint has long been used in Thailand not only to treat bad breath, but also as a folk remedy for flatulence, menstrual pains, diarrhea, sickness, anxiety, aches and pains, indigestion, and irritable bowel syndrome.

Pepper (phrik thai)

Thailand's very own variety of black pepper is considered to be a great source of calcium, phosphorus, and vitamin C. Research has found it to contain anti-inflammatory properties, with case reports highlighting its use to treat high blood pressure, high cholesterol and fight cancer.

Fingerroot (kra chai)

Getting its odd name due to its elongated appearance (rather like a finger), this native variety of ginger carried many of the same medicinal properties; for instance, it may be used to treat muscle pain, rheumatism, gastrointestinal disorders and diarrhea. According to folk medicine, the roots can be used as part of a tonic given to those suffering from stomach issues, colds and the flu.

Note: Be sure to consult a doctor when using any herbal medicine or health supplements to treat medical conditions.

Following methodical guidelines and traditional knowledge, herbalists in Thailand use native plants to create unique herbal remedies that are now widely used around the world, such as Thai spa treatment products, massage oils, essential oils, herbal body scrubs, and body lotions.

Herbal Nasal Inhalers:

Found in practically every convenience store and pharmacy in the country, nasal inhalers (known locally as "yaa dom"), are widely used by Thai people to treat congested noses and nausea. With a range of varieties to choose from, these products normally contain a concoction of peppermint, lemongrass, pandanus, and kaffir limes. The essential oils of these herbs, when inhaled through the nose, are also said to relieve dizziness and headaches, as well as make one feel more "awake".

Herbal Balm or Ointment

These products are similarly made using a combination of essential oils extracted from herbs, such as peppermint and lemongrass. Balms can be used in many different ways; for instance, the ointment-like product can be applied directly to the skin to soothe insect bites, relieve muscle pain, swelling, and rashes. The aroma is also pleasant and safe to inhale in small doses.

Thai Herbal Compress

For those suffering from aching muscles or soft tissue pain, a warm herbal press is a popular treatment used in conjunction with traditional Thai massage. The round ball is filled with fresh herbs, such as lemongrass, turmeric, kaffir lime, camphor and tamarind, before being steamed and then applied to pressure points. The combination of the heat and aroma is said to promote relaxation while relieving stress, fatigue and muscle pain.

The high quality of these natural spa products and herbal remedies has certainly helped Thailand cement its position as the "A Hub for Herbal Remedies".

Thai Herbal Steam Baths

These steam baths may differ depending on the type of product or spa treatment, but the concept is generally the same: a cocktail of aromatic, fresh herbs are mixed together with a mortar and pestle before being stuffed into a cloth bag, which is then placed in a bath or tub of warm water. The resulting steam is said to improve respiration, help skin conditions and, of course, make you feel incredibly relaxed!

Aside from the products mentioned above, herbal extracts are used in a vast range of other skin care products and spa products that are normally available to buy in supermarkets and specialty stores. In Thailand, it is easy to find a variety of bottled essential oils, herbal soaps, body scrubs and lotions.
